

Technical Consultancy

Effective people, strong leadership, appropriate technology and processes are created through continuous setting and maintaining the strategic direction of an organisation and its business, together with the ability to making decisions on a day-to-day basis, deal with changing circumstances and respond to the challenges of a modern business environment.

BDS Solutions will work with you to develop a pragmatic information communications and technology strategy to support your business objectives, that maximises the benefits to be achieved from the exploitation of modern technology.

Our management services team has over 50 years experience at working at senior management level in information, communications and technology positions across both the public sector and commercial markets

Our methods, skills, knowledge and experience can be utilised to work in partnership with you to deliver your ICT strategy that is:

Specific

Measurable

Achievable

Realistic

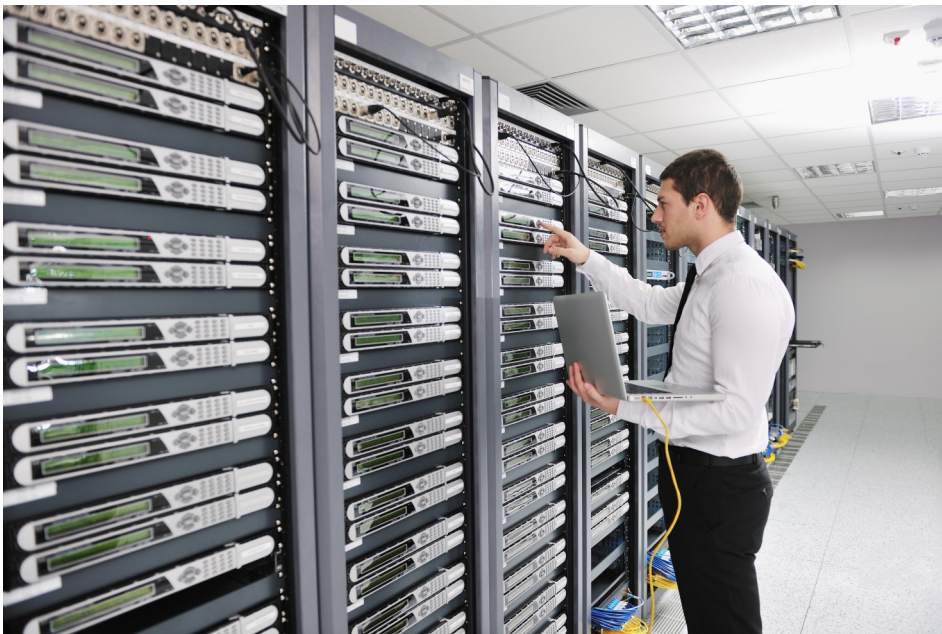

Time-bound

Key factors for success

Our consultants offer the correct blend of vision and pragmatism to realise the outcomes of business investment

We set out to improve and enhance:

- Vision and leadership in setting and maintaining strategic direction
- Thorough understanding of the business, its stakeholders and its environment
- New ways of working are on the board agenda, not relegated as a technology concern only
- Cultural receptiveness to innovation and new ways of working
- The skills and competencies are in place for successful development and delivery of new ways of working
- Staff able to exploit information services and deliver new services
- Front and back office technology fully integrated to support business delivery
- Information and communication available and accessible to everyone who needs it
